E. L. GRAY NEEDS A POLICY; NOT A BRAIN TRUST

Some three months ago Mr. E. L. Gray accepted the leadership of the Liberal Party in Alberta. In doing so he told the convention that he would in the near future present a platform of service, prominent United Farmers of Alberta, and prominent members of other political organizations to discuss with him possible ways and means of bringing unity and peace to the province desiring the establishment of sound business government at Edmonton. A little over a month ago Mr. Gray announced his intention of urging Liberal officers in each constituency to form with representatives of other political groups a small co-ordinating council and in consultation with each council to endeavor to decide upon a plan of unity suitable to local conditions. At the same time he announced the appointment by himself, without consultation with the Liberal executive or any political organization, of a provincial council of four members to form the nucleus of a larger council from other parties to be formed in the near future.

The Tribune feels that Mr. Gray should, in his own interests and in the interests of his party and of the people of Alberta, clarify his propositions (on the face of his statements) he would appear to be advancing towards an unusual and untenable position and one directly contrary to the principles and experience of the party of which he has been chosen a political leader.

He appoints a Brain Trust without consultation with the Liberal executive. How can this be reconciled with the oft-repeated declaration of the Liberal principle by Mackenzie King that the collective wisdom of a party is always superior to the wisdom of any leader and that therefore the Liberal leader should always be governed by the party in the matter of policy.

It has been said that politics makes strange bed fellows. There would indeed be some strange bed fellows if Liberals, Conservatives and U. P. A. be drawn together in Alberta. Even if this marriage of convenience could be arranged how long after the election would harmony remain in such a fusion? Canada's political history is not very encouraging in the idea nor very encouraging to any further experiments by the Liberal Party in that direction. The Liberal Party should remember its own history and following Confederation and in 1917 and the attempt to form a national government just before the last federal election. What the Liberal historian has to say about the after-effects of such a fusion in Canada some years ago is illuminating.

To their opponents victory proved almost as disappointing as defeat. The Reformers in Upper Canada, the Patriotes or Canadian or Liberal party in Lower Canada, had within their ranks diverse elements which only opposition to a common foe could hold together. Once victory, or an instalment of victory, was won these latent differences became apparent. The moderate men who were content to abide in a half-way house and the radicals who were bent on pushing on to the end of the vanishing road now parted company. The experience gained in past administration brought out differences of temperament and interests.

Mr. Gray's proposal will win support from those who declare they do not believe that political parties have any useful place in the government of the province. What they really mean is they do not believe in responsible government for the province. Mr. W. F. F. Laurier years ago pointed out and it remains just as true today, that responsible government means party government. Only through party organization can there be a united, stable and united majority to back the ministry in power and a definite opposition to resist that ministry and stand prepared to provide an alternative administration.

There are others who feel strongly that such a situation or "merger" exists in the province that all good citizens should combine to defeat the present administration. We do not think that such a purely negative bond could form any sort of a satisfactory basis for party union or for a new government. The probable result would be that such a union would defeat its own side and give the present administration a new lease of life.

Mr. Gray apparently takes as the basis of his union the desire for the establishment of a sound business government at Edmonton. It would be hard to find a single person in the province who would admit that he was not in favor of such a government. It is not naturally expected of every administration everywhere and what every administration, including the present administration, should aim at is to administer in the best way possible. We have never known the Liberal Party to admit that it had given sound business government when in office. Something more is required than this. Prime Minister Mackenzie King issued a statement on the night of the last federal election. He did not say that he would give Canada sound business government—he took it for granted that the people well knew he would give such government. He did not.

"We take up at once, as our supreme task, the endeavor to end poverty in the midst of plenty; starvation and unnecessary suffering; a land of abundance, discontent and distress in a country more blessed by Providence than any other on the face of the globe, and to gain for individual lives, and for the nation as a whole, that health and peace and sweet content which is the rightful heritage of all."

The Tribune suggests that the Liberal Party in Alberta take up that same "supreme task" and submit to the electors a policy for the future of economic theory and security in this province. The Liberal Party should stand on its own feet and throw away the crutches of embarrassing alliances, get rid of reactionaries in its own ranks, and make its appeal to all liberal-minded men and women. There are many liberal-minded in the Conservative Party who would be much more comfortable in the Liberal Party because they felt it was not liberal enough. The light should be placed in the Liberal window to guide these wanderers back to the fold. If this is not the plan of the Liberal Party in Alberta, then it has no reason for existence.

TO RUN CURRENTLY

The other evening I joined a group of friends. One of the gentlemen there rather set himself out to enlighten the little meeting by reading the police news contained in one of the Edmonton papers. This gentleman was sent to see many months on various counts, said sentences to him. Finally he read about a man who was sentenced to the electric chair.

"As I understand it, that sentence will run currently," remarked one of the party.

ED. CARNEY PREDICTS FUTURE TREND OF CITIES

A few days ago Ed. Carney of the Peace River called at The Tribune office. Some men are always good for a story and Ed. belongs to that class.

The latest news suggested the subject of aeroplanes and the part they will play in the future of human life and property.

Ed, who is a returned man, then gave his idea of the trend of the cities in the future to meet the plane menace. "As I see it, J. B., the days of constructing cities above ground are about over and in the near future all building will, by order, be constructed underground. The soldier in the front line will be far safer than the civilian at home in the future wars. This will be done," observed Ed, as he struck the desk with his fist, "because there is no other place to go if people want to live."

Ed then went on to visualize many thousands of years hence. He prefaced this by drawing attention to the uncivilized of the several ancient cities which have and are being found in the ruins of the cities. He said that the cities of the future will not be built on the ground but will be built in the air.

"I don't know," said Ed, "but I believe that the cities of the future will be built in the air. I don't know, but I believe that the cities of the future will be built in the air."

"I don't know," said Ed, "but I believe that the cities of the future will be built in the air. I don't know, but I believe that the cities of the future will be built in the air."

BOB BOWMAN, CBC COMMENTATOR, HONORED BY BBC

High tribute to the ability of Bob Bowman, Assistant to the General Program Supervisor of the CBC, as a sports commentator was paid by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

In order to get a running description of the Louis-Farr fight in New York on August 30, the BBC had to make arrangements through NRC, who held the broadcasting rights for the fight. NRC were willing to feed BBC their regular commentator, Glen McCarthy, but the British corporation asked as a special favor that Bob Bowman should be allowed to do the commentary especially for them.

The BBC's request was natural enough, because last year Bob Bowman was recognized as the best sports commentator in Europe. His fee for a broadcast was the second highest paid to any artist in England. Colin Knox, leading radio critic, who writes in the Daily Mail, said: "Bob Bowman is the best commentator I have ever heard."

After a thrilling broadcast from Garmisch-Partenkirchen during the Olympic Winter games, the Daily Express, the London daily, which has the highest circulation of any newspaper in the world, had Bowman's picture on the front page, with the caption: "The Boy Who Took the Starch out of Sports Broadcasting."

Frontier's popularity in the British Isles was the fact that people over there stayed up until 4 o'clock in the morning to hear him broadcast. The fight broadcast started at 4 o'clock in the morning London time. In fact, this was the first time that the BBC had stayed on the air after midnight for an event other than one of extreme importance.

Canadian listeners have heard Bob Bowman frequently since he joined the staff of the CBC last December. He took part in the Christmas Day program, interviewing Dr. A. R. Dufes at Callander. Later he conducted a series of broadcasts, "Night Shift," which were heard every Thursday night until the middle of May. In July Bob Bowman took part in the broadcast describing the arrival of the Imperial Airways flying boat, canoeing and light."

SOME FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED IN GROWING BARLEY FOR MALTING

(Experimental Farms Notes) The standards established for the barley malting grades are such that considerable care must be exercised in the production and handling of a barley crop intended for malting purposes. Barley suitable for the malting trade should be largely of one variety, and free from other grains and foreign matter. It is now generally known that not all varieties make up satisfactory malts. According to the Grain Act, O.A.C. 21 and certain related varieties, Monstrous, Manchurian, and Gairdner are eligible for the malting grades. The two-rowed varieties are used for special malts and constitute a very small percentage of the total barley required for malting. The standard varieties as a group are not allowed in the malting grades.

The use of good, pure seed is essential. If the higher grades are to be realized, a mixture of varieties often results in an uneven malt. Registered seed guarantees not only variety purity and high percentage germination but insures reasonable freedom from other kinds of grain and disease. Treating the seed with an organic mercury dust has been found to provide more vigorous germination by controlling covered smut, seed-borne diseases and certain soil organisms.

Better quality barley is obtained when comparatively cool weather prevails at the time the crop is filling. With this fact in mind, the grower may provide a more favorable environment for his crop by sowing early. Late sowing—as is the practice when early is used as a climatic crop—often results in poor germination and a prematurely ripened grain sample.

Lack of proper care during the harvesting and threshing operations may result in an otherwise good barley sample from the malting grades. The crop should not be cut until it is thoroughly mature. If harvesting of mature grain is to be avoided, and threshing should be carried out with as little loss as possible to reduce to a minimum discoloration from weathering.

Much barley is damaged by chaff, chaff, and chaff. Examination of the grain should be made from time to time during threshing to ascertain the extent of damage so that any necessary action may be taken.

Leave in the hearts of a man and a woman. Faith in the future and God. Children to care for, hardships to conquer. Yet hopefully onward you tread.

Now in the evening of life, don't look backward you see. His hand has led you gently on. As you stand down the years to be. While together you face the setting sun. That his hand will guide you still.

Through Their Public Relations Adviser
Are Giving Radio Addresses On The Functions And Operations Of Banks
In Canada.

Canada's chartered banks, through their public relations adviser, Vernon Knowles, are conducting a series of non-political, non-controversial radio broadcasts on the functions and operations of Canadian banks. It was learned from Edmonton today.

The first of the series was heard Tuesday night, September 7. The addresses are being broadcast over an all-Canada network Tuesday nights from 10:15 to 10:30 and Wednesdays in the day time from 1:15 to 1:30.

Mr. Knowles, who has been known as a newspaper man, who has worked on several western daily newspapers. He was editor and manager of the Winnipeg Telegram and later managing editor of the Winnipeg Tribune. He has also served in the parliamentary press gallery at Ottawa and in the press galleries of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Ontario. He was editor and a member of the board of directors of the Toronto Mail and Empire from 1928 to 1932 and from 1933 to the end of last year was managing editor of the Toronto Daily Star.

Mr. Knowles is commenting on the series of broadcasts. Mr. Knowles laid particular stress upon the fact that they were designed to be completely non-political.

DAD'S NOTIONS

By E. S. Stanley

School starts, and the training knowledge is to be acquired and habits formed. Between the forming of habits is far more potent in determining the destiny of the child. An effortless period repeated becomes a habit of effortlessness and the capacity to make an effort diminishes. Wandering of the mind allowed to continue to be a habit and the ability to concentrate disappears. Many an adult who has no place for anything who spends as much time looking for things as he does doing them. He has formed the habit of disorderliness at the school desk and not away without the example of the teacher.

Habits of indifference, habits of inattention, forgetfulness, indifference and carelessness these are some of the things that often fasten themselves onto a young life. Fearless habits! And it's a herculean task to break them. But until they are broken they deprive one of his rightful place in the world of achievement.

Constructive habits that make life fruitful and happy are habits the teacher is privileged to assist in forming. Leaders of thought who will efficiently cope with world problems—masters of science who will discover new truths—spiritual and philosophical minds who will champion sacred ideals of life are some of the characters teachers may and do assist in forming, but only through the establishment of right habits.

Awsome is the responsibility of a teacher, but wonderful is his opportunity. A gardener grows vegetables, but the teacher forms character. If cruel or boredom attack the gardener only vegetables suffer, but if the teacher is thus afflicted, character of men and destiny of lives are adversely affected. Society and the nation also lose.

Many influences play upon the formation of habits and of character, but next to the influence of the home the school perhaps is the greatest.

Therefore to touch without sending the exalted character of his profession, and recognizing the far-reaching results of his work, is a crime.

CORRECTION

On page 3 of last week's Tribune, heading read "Minutes of Council Meeting of M. D. of Bear Lake, No. 739." This heading should have read "Minutes of Council Meeting of M. D. of Grande Prairie, No. 739." The mistake was fairly obvious and The Tribune believes few of its readers were misled. To those who were we apologize.

SAYS 25-BUSHEL WHEAT
AVERAGE AT HINES CREEK

Thor Forsyth, grain buyer at Hines Creek, accompanied by the station agent at that point, T. Froese, and his wife, Mrs. Froese, spent the week-end in Grande Prairie, taking in "The Champagne Waltz" at the Capitol Saturday night.

Crops at Hines Creek, Mr. Forsyth said, are in good shape, and threshing will be general as soon as the weather is favorable. He estimates wheat in that district will average 25 bushels to the acre. Oats and barley, however, are "not so good."

The party left Grande Prairie Monday to spend some hours at Beaver Lodge Experimental Station, following which they will return home via Valhalla, La. Glace and Buffalo Lakes, where Mr. Forsyth will call on his people.

TWO-THIRD CROP EXPECTED
IN THE WANAM DISTRICT

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Parlee of the Wanam District were visitors to Grande Prairie on Friday. Mr. Parlee informed The Tribune that cutting in his area was about completed and it was the opinion that the crop taken was a whole, would be about two-thirds of what it was last year.

UNEMPLOYMENT ON INCREASE
SAYS M. PETERSON AFTER TRIP

Miles Peterson returned last week to Grande Prairie, after an absence of seven weeks, during which time he visited Calgary, Edmonton and Kamloops.

Mr. Peterson stated that the number of unemployed was increasing, both in Alberta and British Columbia, and as far as Alberta is concerned the province would enter the winter with more unemployed than at any time since the beginning of the depression.

Mr. Peterson further stated that he visited the Alberta legislature during the session which closed last week. He said the bills were crowded.

BILL DRYAN, EAST OF G. P.
BEGAN THRESHING MONDAY

Bill Dryan, farming directly east of Grande Prairie, started threshing oats on Monday. He is a Malheur, Calgary, representative of the L.A. Club, Clifford H. Frieson, Boyd Candy Co., Winnipeg. E. J. Alken, Simons, Calgary, Montreal.

KNIGHTS OF THE GRIP

THEORY AND PRACTICE

There is hardly a grain producer in this province but knows that, theoretically, the cooperative system is the soundest and the best. While many theorists connect their belief in a practical way by participating in cooperative institutions such as Alberta Pools Elevators, others fail to do so. If the theory is sound and right it should be supported.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE BY THE ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

It is often difficult to give a meaning to words which we use every day. One of these words is "health." We say that we are healthy and yet, when asked to explain what we mean, we likely find it almost impossible to put our meaning into words.

In the first place, when we are healthy we are free from any obvious disease. That perhaps is the commonest idea of health. As long as an individual goes about his work and does not get complaint, he is thought of as healthy.

As a matter of fact, such people are not necessarily healthy in any sense like the full meaning of the word. Freedom from actual disease is desirable, but health is far more than that. Health is something positive, something happiness to us. The person with health faces the way with confidence, finds pleasure in his occupation, able to do better work, and can fully enjoy the hours of relaxation.

It is surprising the number of people who spend a more or less miserable life, unable to accomplish the things of which they are capable, because they have not health. These same people are surprised when, on a medical examination, they learn that there is something wrong with their bodies, something not perhaps serious enough to cause death, but sufficient to handicap them in their daily life and, perhaps, to make them grow prematurely old.

Again, there are those who miss the happiness that comes with health and yet are free from any physical blemish. These are the people who are not following the simple rules of hygienic living. We cannot rob our bodies of rest, fresh air or proper food and continue to have health.

Health is a condition of physical well-being that comes to those who are free from physical defects and who follow the simple rules of hygienic living. Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

ALTA. CROP
REPORT No. 5

Issued by Alberta Dept. of Agriculture,
September 8, 1937

Harvest is well advanced in northern and central districts, with wheat cutting practically completed, the bulk of coarse grains harvested, and threshing general. In west-central districts south of Edmonton, and running northwesterly to the St. Paul and Lloydminster area, most of the wheat is cut, the coarse grain harvest under way and threshing has commenced. In the Edmonton zone north to Athabasca, ripening of grain has been delayed by the cool weather and frequent showers of the past few weeks. Though wheat is mostly cut, harvest in general is delayed awaiting maturity of crop, and practically no threshing has been done. Wet weather has also prevailed in the Peace River district, and in consequence, harvest has proceeded slowly. About two-thirds of cutting is done, but practically no threshing.

Yields over the province will vary widely. In parts the dry soil in the south-east and north-west has resulted in yields of 20 to 25 bushels. In the south-east, where the soil is rich, yields are from 2 to 7 bushels. In the south-west, where the soil is poor, yields are from 7 to 25 bushels. Grades throughout the south are good. Not sufficient threshing has been done in central and northern districts, including the Peace River district, for satisfactory yields and grades. Yields are likely to vary by districts from 10 to 25 bushels of wheat, oats 25 to 35 bushels, barley 20 to 40 bushels. A good deal of second growth has occurred in crops from Red Deer north to Athabasca, causing much considerable variation in maturity, and grades may suffer accordingly. Heavy growth of weeds is also a problem and may interfere with proper curing in the stack. Ten days of clear dry weather would facilitate harvest in the northern half of the province, whereas continued cold and rain may mean reduction in grades and some loss in late crops, especially in the case of coarse grains.

Early August frosts did slight damage in the Grasshopper area. More serious frost injury is reported from the low lands of the Grande Prairie district, where yield and grade are appreciably affected.

Hail storms occurred through August at a number of central and northern points. In the Peace River district, hail did some damage to crops, but in general, the crops are in good condition, and will be available for shipment. Second growth alfalfa is a good crop. There should be ample feed for the needs of the province.

Livestock on the whole is in excellent condition. The earlier shortage of hog feed is relieved, and in some districts there is now a distinct tendency toward expansion in hogs. Following are brief notes from district reports.

Medicine Hat.—Harvesting finished. Complete crop failure some parts, but an average farmers will recover seed. Good yields 3 to 10 bushels in western district. Very little feed.

Lethbridge.—Most wheat on dry prairie finished, yielding 2 bushels to 25 bushels. Some shattering from hail winds. Good crop second cutting alfalfa.

Cardston.—Wheat practically completed. Wheat 20 to 35 bushels. Considerable surplus of feed and grass. High winds and some drifting. Heavy yields sugar beets anticipated.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By H. G. L. Strange

Director, Research Department, Scarce
Grain Company, Limited.

A drastic decline has taken place in the world's demand for export wheat. Mr. Brown estimates that the importing countries will buy this year only 400 million bushels.

This is in striking contrast to the 815 million bushels which was the annual average amount purchased for five years prior to 1931 and to the 940 million bushels, the sales for 1928 alone.

We are told that millions of people need more bread. Why, then, is more export wheat not purchased?

It is mostly because of an extraordinary economic depression that has recently gripped the minds of most nations. Governments are reluctant to pay higher prices for bringing in less and less of the goods and services which constitute the life and the only means of payment for their own export products.

To John Mackay, eminent English philosopher, in considering these conditions, the economic depression, which has gripped the minds of most nations, is the cause of the world's economic depression.

Following factors have tended to cause prices of flouring wheat to rise. The first is the economic depression, which has gripped the minds of most nations, is the cause of the world's economic depression.

LONDON TRIES TO SOLVE SEVERE PROBLEM

The London County Council has provided free entertainment to school children in the London Parks during the summer holidays as a means of dissuading children in the poorer districts from playing in the traffic-ridden streets of the British metropolis. This photograph shows a magician casting a spell of amusement over a crowd of children from the bandstand in Southwark Park. Judging from the number of adults in the crowd, the mothers and fathers also enjoy the entertainment.

IL DUCE GOES TO SICILY TO WITNESS MANOEUVRES

Mussolini is seen boarding his yacht "Aurora" at the port of Genoa, where, for the first time in fourteen years, he is visiting Sicily, escorted by a cruiser and six destroyers. The object of his visit is to attend the important Italian manoeuvres in which army, navy and air force units will be engaged.

FOREIGN INFLUENCE FELT IN HOLLYWOOD FASHIONS

Foreign fashion trends are as popular in Hollywood this season as everywhere else. Paris famous landmarks served as the print motif on the dress displayed by Lili Beate, Columbia star. Its features are a short waist, peplum, a V-neckline outlined with organza ruffles edged in red, green and yellow embroidery. Wind-blown bosoms spot this white crepe evening gown selected by Joan Perry for Columbia's "Devil Is Driving." The floral motif is embroidered on the creamy bolero sleeves. "Green" inspired the white silk frock worn by Jean Parker in Columbia's "Life Begins With Love." The green wool bodice is hand-embroidered with clusters of vari-colored flowers.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

DO'S AND DON'TS

Give your camera half a chance and you'll get good snapshots.

IT'S really quite surprising the number of amateurs who go merrily along snapping pictures without giving any thought as to why their snapshots appear somewhat smudgy or cloudy.

If your snapshots can be classed with the above the chances are the trouble can be attributed to your own neglect and not to faulty construction of the camera.

A dirty lens, for example, will cause smudgy prints. A lens is the eye of your camera. Can you see clearly if your glasses are smudged by finger prints?

Cleaning a lens is a very simple operation. All you need is a soft, starched linen handkerchief and perhaps a match or pencil, if the lens is quite small. The rear surface of the lens can easily be reached by removing the back of the camera.

If the camera has a double lens (one behind and one in front of the shutter diaphragm), the front combination may be removed by turning to the left, which will allow you to work through the shutter opening.

Do not try to "dig" with the handkerchief over the end of the match or lead pencil. If the lens is quite dirty breathe on it and then rub quickly with the handkerchief. Be sure, when replacing the front lens, to screw it back into the shutter as far as it will go.

The suggestion to work through the shutter opening also applies to cleaning the front surface of single lenses fitted to box cameras and certain folding models. Work carefully and don't exert too much pressure.

CHILDREN

When taking pictures of children snap them in a natural pose—doing something.

"STAND up straight now and look at me." "Put your hands down, darling, and smile. I want to get a good picture to send to Aunt Minnie."

Haven't you heard these two and many similar expressions on the part of parents when they are taking snapshots of their children? Let's hope you are not numbered among them for unless your child is quite apt at posing the result will be a rather uninteresting snapshot which does not do justice to the child.

First of all, as you know, youngsters are the cutest when they are perfectly natural. If a lot of fuss is made to get them to stand just so, or an effort is made to get them to do a certain thing, the chances are they will look too posed in the finished print.

There are two types of child pictures, I might say: just plain record pictures and the other kind you should strive to get—story-telling pictures. A little boy standing straight as an arrow with arms stiff against the sides of the body and staring at the camera is a good example of a record picture, but snap a picture of that same little rascal making mud pies, or playing traffic policeman, and you have a story-telling picture with real human interest appeal.

Children's pictures should always be taken fairly close up, rarely more than ten feet from the camera. If you have an ordinary box camera don't get closer than six or eight feet unless a portrait attachment is placed over the lens. With a portrait attachment you can get as close as three and a half feet to your subject and get sharp, distinct pictures that will show every curl and dimple. By moving a lever on the newer type box cameras, however, you can shoot as close as five feet to your subject without a portrait attachment.

With a folding camera of focusing type, the closer the subject is to the lens the more care is required in estimating the distance. Set the pointer on the distance scale at the number of feet between the lens and the child. If you change your position for succeeding pictures, be sure to change the pointer to the proper distance.

And watch your backgrounds. A nice, attractive background adds so much to your pictures. Telephone poles, wires, unattractive fences, garages, and what have you, often spoil an otherwise excellent, fascinating human interest picture. In fact, any prominent off-side object in the picture will detract from the interest in what the child is doing.

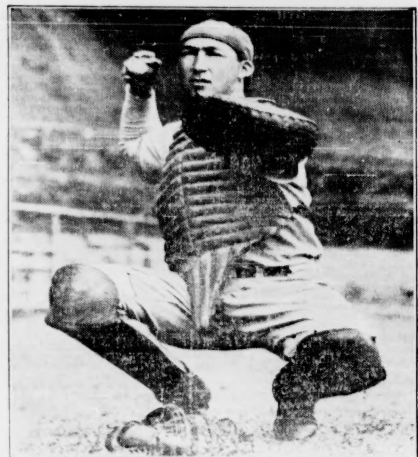

Here's another tip. Try to avoid having the sun shining directly in the child's eyes. For the poor little fellow can't help squinting under such conditions and neither could you. Let the sun come from the side. This gives an interesting lighting and what professionals call "roundness."
